HOOVER ON SHIP READY FOR SOUTH AMERICAN JAUNT

President-Elect Cheered
by Crowd at San Pedro
this Morning

BY JAMES L. WEST
Associated Press Staff Writer.
San Pedro, Calif., Nov. 19.—(AP)— Herbert Hoover arrived here at 9:40
o'clock this morning from Palo Alto
and went immediately aboard the battleship Maryland for his good will trip to South America.

The President-elect was met at his train by Admiral William V. Pratt, Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Coast fleet and a group of other naval officials who escorted him to the Admiral's launch, which put off immediately down the bay to the battleship. Five minutes later there was a series of booming blasts and various battleships in the harbor fired
the presidential salute of 21 guns.

Almost as the President-elect's special train stopped near the Fifth Street landing Mr. and Mrs. Hoover appeared on the rear platform, smiling broadly.

Roses for Mrs. Hoover.
Some one thrust a beautiful bouquet
of rose buds into Mrs. Hoover's arms and carrying these, she accompanied her distinguished husband to the station platform and walked down
a 200 foot long aisle of sailors to the yard of Admiral Pratt.

An immense crowd of people surged about the train, along the harbor
docks and far out into the wharfs.
The land about the harbor was a black dot of people, there to watch
the inauguration of the Presidentelect's southern voyage.

A few minutes before the arrival
at San Pedro, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover had stood on the platform of their special train and waved to 10,000
school children at Wilmington, who replied with lusty cheers.

Twenty minutes after Mr. Hoover's arrival at the harbor he was aboard
the Maryland, ready to sail, and preparations were made immediately
to get the trim gray fighting ship,
now transformed into a carrier of peace and good will, out of sea.

DEADLOCK LOOMS IN PICKIN NEW SENATE LEADER

Several Prominent Republicans Mentioned
as Party Whip

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The problem of choosing a majority leader
to succeed Senator Charles Curtis
of Kansas, the Vice-President-elect, is giving Republican members of the Senate some political pastime after the serious labors of a national campaign.

An apparently friendly contest,
which is still a free-for-all, is being waged in behalf of some of the older Republican Senators with the names
of Senators Watson of Indiana;
Jones of Washington; McNary of Oregon; Fess of Ohio; Moses of New Hampshire, and Reed of Pennsylvania, among those under discussion.

Seniority has always been the guiding light in the determination of Senate posts, but this has been waived in recent years in the selection of the party leader. When Senator Lodge of Massachusetts died four years ago Senator Curtis was chosen as his successor although he was outranked in seniority by Senators Warren of Wyoming; Smoot
of Utah, and Borah of Idaho.

Several Senators are reported to be prepared to support Senator Mc-Nary of Oregon for leader. In the event a deadlock is threatened, the Oregon Senator is well known having led the farm relief fight as chairman of the agricultural committee. He is now preparing an administration farm bill and has taken the lead in the fight for passage of farm relief legislation at this short session.

McNary is outranked by Senators Watson, Jones and Moses of those most prominently mentioned for the post. Another Senator whose name has figured in the discussion is Fess
of Ohio, the assistant whip, just elected to his second term.

The decision will rest with a party caucus which probably will not be called for that purpose until Senator
Curtis has announced his retirement,
or until shortly before he becomes
the Vice President.

ASSERTS TIP ON McSWIGGEN VISIT CAME FROM OFFICE

A Startling Allegation is Made in Letter to Cook Co. Coroner

Chicago, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The "Mc-Swiggen jury", which has been investigating the sensational slaying
two years ago of William H. Mc-Swiggen, an Assistant State's Attorney, is expected to resume its sessions after December 3, when a new political regime takes office.

The jury was to reconvene today
at the call of Oscar Wolff, retiring Coroner, but it was indicated a postponement would be sought until the new Coroner, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, assumes office.

A new bit of evidence for consideration by the "millionaire Coroner's jury" as it has been called, is a letter placed in the Coroner's hands by a man signing himself "E. R. P. J."
who described himself as a former member of the St. Louis gang known as "Egan's Rats".

The writer of the letter asserted
he was in the State's Attorney's office the day McSwiggen was killed by machine gun bullets as he was driving to Cicero. "E. R. P. J." said that at that time he heard a high official of the State's Attorney's office call a telephone number which was that of a Cicero gangster and that the official told the gangster McSwiggen was going to Cicero that night. It was only a few hours later that the young Assistant State's Attorney was killed.

HUGE STILL WAS FOUND ON FARM IN OGLE COUNTY

Distillery Occupied a Large Barn Near
Chuck's Inn

(Telegraph Special Service)
Oregon, Nov. 19.—One of the largest distilleries that has ever been uncovered in northern Illinois since the enactment of the prohibition law, was discovered Saturday night when Sheriff Sam Good and Deputies Clint Myers and Raylan Hill went to the John Host farm, south of Oregon, armed with a search warrant which was sworn out by Deputy Myers. Here they discovered a complete plant which was in charge of a stranger who gave the name of Albert Johnson.

The immensity of the plant made it impossible to start dismantling it until this morning when several men
under the supervision of Sheriff Good started work. It was expected that it would take until the middle of the week to dismantle the huge distillery and haul the equipment to the county jail here in trucks.

From all indications, the plant had just been ready to start turning out the finished product. The farm, which is said to be rented by John Host of Polio, was unoccupied except for Johnson, who was taken in custody
and is now in the county jail here.
Johnson appears to be a globe trotter with no definite residence and he refuses to name the owners of the vast plant.

The farm is located just north of the Chuck's Inn on the south side of the road, a short distance from the Black Hawk Trail and plainly visible from the paved highway. The still was housed in the big barn adjoining the farm house, two rectifiers extending from the bottom through the hayloft to the very peak of the structure, a distance of 25 or 30 feet.

Ten huge vats, seven feet high and 12 feet in diameter were found, over half of the number being filled with mash ready to be run through the still. Two large oil burners were also stationed in the barn to be used in the operation of the still. The entire plant represented the expenditure of thousands of dollars, and with a capacity of many hundreds of gallons of liquor weekly.

Ogle county authorities believe that Mr. Host had nothing whatever to do with the farm lately and had no knowledge of what use the tenants
made of the property.

STEWART'S PLEA FOR A DIRECTED VERDICT FAILED

Judge Orders Oil Man
to Defend Self in Capital Court

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Justice
Jennings Bailey refused today in District of Columbia Supreme Court to direct a verdict of not guilty in the perjury trial of Robert W. Stewart, Chairman of the Standard Oil Co.
of Indiana, as requested by the defense.

The defense had requested verdict
on Friday when the government concluded presentation of its case against Stewart who is charged with having falsely sworn before a Senate Teapot Dome committee that he had no knowledge of bond transactions of the Continental Trading
Co. of Canada.

Stewart's counsel argued that the government had not supported its charges in the testimony of members of the Senate committee and the official record of Stewart's appearance before the investigators.

The decision requires the defense
to present its own side of the case
and it called Stewart himself to the stand.

Singing Steward of Liner is Smuggler

New York, Nov. 15.—(AP)—The singing steward of the Cunard liner Berenaria, who has been heard in many concerts, church programs and over the radio, and a policeman whose boat was along the Cunard
docks were under charges of diamond smuggling today.

The steward, William Ballyn,
chief of the Berenaria's force, was arrested when two packages of diamonds, valued at several thousand dollars were discovered in his stateroom. He implicated the policeman, Traffic Officer John T. McIntyre who he charged was the go-between for the smugglers. McIntyre, who is free on bail, said he had known Bal-lyn for years but denied any knowledge of the diamond smuggling.

Customs officers went immediately to Ballyn's room on boarding the liner and found gems. Sixty officers searched all the rooms in the Beren-aria, including the captain's, even
the pockets of suits in his wardrobe.

Klan Criticized

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—In an opinion delivered by Justice Van De-Venter and bristling with criticism
of the Ku Klux Klan, the Supreme Court today upheld a New York law requiring unincorporated associations requiring an oath as a condition of membership to file detailed information with the Secretary of State.

RADIO MESSAGES SENT BY VESTRIS ARE BEING PROBED

Agents for Owners Say
No Preliminary S.
O. S. Went Out

New York, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Denial
in behalf of the owners of the British steamship Vestris that they caused the Captain to delay SOS calls focused attention today on radio messages obtained by Federal Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, who is conducting an inquiry into the disaster.

David Cook, vice-president of Sanderson & Son, American agents
for Lamport & Holt, issued this statement:

"We had no message from Captain Carey until after we had asked him what was his trouble. The first we knew of any trouble on the Vestris
was about 10:15 Monday morning
(Nov. 12) when somebody at station
WOR called us up to ask if we had heard the SOS which the Vestris was sending out and which their station was picking up. I immediately rang up the Radio Marine Corporation and asked them for details, which they gave me. I then instructed them to send a wireless to Captain Carey asking him what his trouble was and his reply was that the first communication we had from
him. United States Attorney Tuttle is wasting his time trying to unearth some message between Captain Carey and me before the SOS
was sent out."

Subpoenaes Filed
Mr. Tuttle has subpoenaed the files of merchant ships, including the Voltaine of the Lamport & Holt Line, which was the nearest of its ships to the Vestris when she sank.
He also has obtained Navy records
of all radio messages concerning the Vestris.

The SOS call was sent at 10 o'clock last Monday morning.
Charles Vercher, third radio operator of the Vestris, testified last week
that a preliminary distress message,
saying "we may need assistance,"
was sent to all ships about 8 or 9 o'clock Monday morning. A similar preliminary distress message, he said, might have been sent even before 8 p. m., Sunday, but later he testified he believed the one message was the only one of the sort sent.

To Save Fees
John Boxill, a Negro stoker of the Vestris, who was rescued by the battleship Wyoming, was quoted in dispatches from Norfolk, Va., as saying that the Vestris was unable to reach the Voltaine by radio and so reporting to the line, which then notified
Captain Carey that it would notify Boxill to go to his assistance.

Boxill said the officers and crew of the Vestris did not believe the boat would sink, but thought that she would have to be towed in and wished the Voltaine to do this in order to save salvage fees.

Information obtained by Mr. Tuttle and the possibility that witnesses might leave his jurisdiction caused him to call a hearing for this afternoon. When the session ended Saturday an adjournment was taken till Tuesday.

Three of Vestris' Survivors on Stage

New York, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Three of the rescued members of the Vestris crew are to make a vaudeville tour at $55 a week, to describe their experiences in the disaster.

BOSWELL GETTING READY TO STAGE SLAYERS' TRIAL

His Indictment is Not to Stop Hearing of Price Murderers

Marion, Ill., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Working against odds and in the face of a federal liquor conspiracy indictment,
State's Attorney Arlie Boswell today
used a court order to obtain the presence of Fred Wooten, Birger
ganster, for arraignment on charges of complicity in the murder of Lory
Price, State Highway patrolman, and his wife, in 1927.

Wooten's trial, with that of Art
Newman and Riley Simmons, two other Birgerites, had been set for Nov. 26, but Wooten had not been arraigned. Fearing delay because of that fact, Boswell arranged with Madison county officials, who held
Wooten, to deliver him here today.
Bond county officials, however, on a court writ, claimed Wooten on a bank robbery charge.

Boswell went to Harrisburg Saturday night and obtained a writ from Judge A. E. Somers demanding
Wooten's appearance here today.
Boswell delivered the writ to Sheriff
Simon Brown of Bond county and Brown brought Wooten to Marion
today shortly before court convened.

Boswell said today he had not yet been notified officially of his indictment in East St. Louis Friday and he planned to proceed with the prosecution of the Price murder trial next week. Boswell's term expires Dec. 3.

SLAYING OF BOY IN SOFT DRINK PARLOR PROBED

Chicago Officials Investigating Resorts
Near Schools

Chicago, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The slay-ing of a 10 year old boy in a soft drink parlor has prompted a widespread investigation of resorts
which, it is charged, cater to school children and contribute to youthful delinquency.

The death of William Adomaytis
yesterday was an immediate cause of inquiry. He was shot to death in the store of Anthony Juskus. Police said Juskus confessed to the shooting.

Juskus told police the boy had accused him of cheating at dice. Adomaytis, he said, was intoxicated, and had provoked a quarrel causing him
to shoot "in self-defense."

Juskus' store is near the Armour public school. Police found liquor concealed in ice cream freezers, and evidence that there had been gambling. Juskus denied he sold liquor to school children.

Conditions of delinquency among high school children, according to school authorities, are beyond control of the city's 124 truant officers.
William Bodine, Superintendent of Compulsory Education, said that only police intervention could stop drinking and gambling.

The Juvenile Protective Association has charged that many resorts
near schools cater to students' liquor
trade and gambling patronage.

CHRISTMAS CARD, TORN PHOTO ARE CLUES IN MURDER

Body of Unidentified
Young Woman Found
in Corn Field

Norristown, Pa., Nov. 19.—(AP)—
A Christmas card inscribed "Nancy from Elvira" and bits of photographs
that had been torn into small pieces were the only clues detectives had today in search for the slayer of an unidentified young woman.

Apparently choked and then shot through the head, the girl's body, still warm, was found in a corn field
near here yesterday by Domenico Romenica, a farmer.

Investigators said that an automobile had started to enter the field
from a lane about 200 yards away,
and that the slayer had then dragged the body the rest of the way to the spot where Romenica found it,
lying face downward.

The slain girl was about 25 years old, 5 feet 4 inches in height, and had chestnut hair and brown eyes.
Her clothing included a blue felt hat,
black broadcloth coat trimmed with black fur, blue satin dress, black pumps and flesh colored silk stockings.

The coroner's physician said marks
in her neck indicated she had been choked before the slayer fired a steel jacketed bullet into the back of her head.

volved in organizing a state administration."

MIKADO WORSHIPS AT SHRINE OF HIS ANCESTORS' DEITY

He and Empress Continue Rites of Coronation Ritual

Kyoto, Japan, Nov. 19.—(AP)—To
the fountain head of the worship of his great ancestors, Amaterasu Omikami, the Sun Goddess, Hiro-hito, the newly enthroned Emperor of Japan, journeyed today to worship again in the presence of the spirit of this deity from whom he and his 123 predecessors are believed to have descended.

Accompanied by his consort, Empress Nagako, by other members of the imperial family and by the ranking officers and ritualists of his court, the Emperor made the short train journey from Kyoto this morning to the twin villages of Uji-Yamada, in the ancient province of Ise (pronounced Ee-Say) near the Sun Goddess' shrine.

The sovereigns will stay in the temporary imperial lodge at Yamada until Thursday when they return by train to Kyoto.

Imperial visits to the Ise shrines
are rare, coming only once in the lifetime of each sovereign, at his enthronement.

In the inner shrine of Ise reposes
the original of the sacred mirror
symbol of the soul of the Sun Goddess herself, believed by the devout to have come down from that deity
through seven generations of divinities to the first Emperor, Jimmu
Tenno, who founded the empire
2,588 years ago.

This ancient relic was enshrined at Ise in the year 3 B. C., according to the orthodox Japanese chronology, by the first builder of the great shrines, the Emperor Suinin, and there it has remained ever since in the holy of holies.

The great shrine of Ise consists of the "inner" shrine at Uji and the "outer" shrine at Yamada. The former is dedicated to the Sun Goddess and the latter to Toyouke-No-Okami, a goddess of rice and cereals.
The Emperor and Empress will worship tomorrow at the outer shrine of Yamada and Wednesday
at the inner shrine of Uji.

Two Ashton Billiard Parlors Burglarized

Two robberies took place in Ashton either Saturday night or early Sunday morning, according to reports received at the sheriff's office
early today. In each instance, pool rooms were entered.

A window in the rear of the John
M. Cleary pool room was broken, admitting the thieves, who opened two cash registers and emptied them of their contents, which amounted to exactly $25. In taking leave they dropped a nickel on the floor. The stock was not molested.

At the Andrew Reinhardt pool room,
a window was also broken to gain
entrance and about $10 in change
was taken from the cash register.
The stock was not disturbed and nothing but the money was taken.

NOVEMBER RAINS IN THE REDWOODS—

THE woods are silent, hushed expectantly. Great clumps of fern, their beauty masked in dust. Await with trembling eagerness each gust of wind which hints of changes soon to be.

Small winds which whisper in the feathered tips of redwoods when the sky hangs low and gray. Announce that rain-filled clouds are on their way.

And soon will brush these hills with their moist lips. And break in blessings on the heads of trees.

And fall in such an even gentleness. That, half unconscious of the rain's caress.

The broad fern clusters and moss tapestries. Will glow more greenly bright within an hour.

Refreshed by rain, scarce heavier than dew. Which silences all the trees and filters through.

To nourish mighty root and fragile flower.

A plea is in the trees this very day. That skies will not forget their promised yield.

Of rain, but with a treasure-house unsealed. Drop down their silver as they pass their way.

Plock-Siegel Wedding Celebrated

Thursday evening, Nov. 15th, at 6 o'clock, at St. Paul's Lutheran parsonage, the Rev. Lloyd W. Walter officiated at the ceremony which united in marriage two popular Palmyra young people, Miss Emma Louise Plock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Plock, and H. Claybourne Siegel, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ocker.

The young people were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Flave W. Plock, uncle and aunt of the bride. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party proceeded to Prairieville to the new home which had been completely furnished by the parents of both young people.

A sumptuous four course wedding dinner was served, presided over by the young bride, charming in her brown satin wedding gown, and the young bridegroom, handsome and perfectly at ease, as host, for the first time, in the new home. Lovely flowers decorated the table and rooms.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Ocker; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Plock and sons Louis and Merle; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Plock; Mr. and Mrs. Flave W. Plock; and the Misses Marion Trough and Ruth Klosterman.

Later in the evening a number of friends arrived to wish Mr. and Mrs. Siegel every joy and happiness. Many beautiful and useful gifts were received to adorn the new home.

Mr. Siegel fills an important position as accountant for the Sandusky Cement Co.

BREAKFAST— Stewed figs with lemon cereal, cream, creamed eggs on toast, extra toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON— Beef broth with noodles, open cottage cheese sandwiches, steamed carrot pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER— Pork tenderloin with onions, cranberry sauce, cabbage, celery and pimiento salad, apple charlotte, milk, coffee.

In place of time-honored apple sauce, cranberry sauce is served with the pork and apples used as dessert. Cranberries are especially good with this particular way of cooking the meat. The addition of onions to the dish makes a tart and highly flavored sauce desirable.

Pork Tenderloin with Onions

One or two medium sized tenderloins, onions, crackers, salt and pepper, butter, 1-2 to 1 cup boiling water.

A small family will need one strip of tenderloin while of course a large one will need two.

Cut meat lengthwise through the center with a sharp knife. Pull apart until almost split in two. If one tenderloin is used, cut crosswise through the center. Put one-half split side up, in a roaster. Cover with a thick layer of thinly sliced onions. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and cover with a thin layer of coarse cracker crumbs. Place remaining piece of meat on top of this, repeating onions, seasoning and cracker crumbs and making the last layer of crackers thicker than the first one. Dot crackers with bits of butter and sprinkle lightly with two tablespoons water. Pour water in the pan and bake in a moderate oven for one hour. Irish or sweet potatoes can be parboiled for 15 minutes in salted water and browned in the pan with the meat.

If two strips of tenderloin are needed, they are split but not cut in half. One whole split tenderloin is placed above the other whole split tenderloin.

Many Bright Reds.

Fay Bainter chooses a geranium red shimmering velvet wrap and moire evening gown to match for her new play. Ann Maxwell has a cute little frock of bright red flannel with well-tailored shoulders, light sleeves and a panel of smart pleats across the left hip, below a pointed skirt yoke.

Next to color is the formality of daytime clothes, even sports things. Football games are bringing out very dressy togs.

Incidentally, the jams attendant on football games and the length of time it takes to crawl along auto roads has introduced the vogue of peering one's own lunch hamper right in the car. You see smart crowds having their snack right on the football grounds, after they have gotten safely parked. Dorothy Phelps, one of the chic munchers at a recent game, wore a stunning crimson tweed suit. The lining of her black baby lamb coat was crimson too.

Many smart debutantes are busily arranging the Victory Ball. A group of them soliciting the Navy's austere aid at his very formal function, looked like a fashion parade on the upper deck of a battleship. Every single costume was a fashionable example of the new formality in day-time clothes.

Beatrice Myers was the only young lady to choose black. Her coat had a gothic of fox and was lavishly trimmed with it for collar and cuffs. Her trim lizard sandals had handsome silver ankle buckle.

Gray and Belle.

Graceful and very handsome was the Frenchy little grey kasha velour coat Louise Plater wore, with a full bob collar and elbow length cuffs of shaved lamb. Fononda Sheesley's deep beige coat took the diagonal line to chic, with an unusual tucking slanting across the front and the back too. Natural lynx trimmed it, with a deep collar and front facing and very narrow cuffs of fur. She carried a handsome envelope purse made of embroidered wool.

Brenda Godfrey had on a deep green velvet ensemble, with about the sweetest little embroidered overblouse, green crepe done in gold and a touch of apricot. Her little turban was Arab in its tightly swathed effect, soft and becoming to so young a face.

Pinks, apricots and other flattering colors touch up some of the season's loveliest costumes. I saw Mrs. Philip Camman dancing at the Ambassador grill in a gorgeous black velvet gown with slashed sides revealing a flush pink satin foundation.

PRINCESS MARY REFUSES TO SMOKE AT LUNCHEON—

Ipswich, England.—(AP)—No cigars for Princess Mary, mother of two youngsters, wife of Viscount Lascelles and daughter of Queen Mary and King George.

"Ladies and gentlemen may now smoke," sang out the toastmaster at a public luncheon in honor of Their Majesties' daughter, who visited Ipswich to open various new public institutions.

A waiter passed a box of cigars close to Princess Mary. She glanced at it, made no sign and turned away her head.

Many women smoke in public in England, and a number of women guests took cigars from the box, but, presumably influenced by the royal example, did not light them.

MILLIONS of POUNDS USED BY THE GOVERNMENT

BY BETSY SCHUYLER

NEA Service Writer

New York, Nov. 19.—This is the time of year when all smart New Yorkers are drifting back to town. They may keep one foot in their country homes, so to speak, having week-end parties out where the open spaces begin. But once the winter season is formally launched, most of them take up their residence in their town places.

There is an avalanche of social functions: exhibitions, operas, concerts, football games, races, dances, theater parties, debuts and charity benefits that often take the form of amateur theatricals.

The days, especially, grow fuller of social engagements as old friends meet for luncheon, the United Hunts, football games or other afternoon diversions.

Color perhaps is the universal fashion note. Blues still stay as good as ever, with various reds crowding them a bit. Elspeth Parmenter, for instance, has a gorgeous Chianti red wool ensemble, circular skirt, velvet blouse an dthree-quarter coat topped by a blonde fox collar.

Costly handbags share the black and white tendency, some of the finest of them being antelope, or suede, with onyx and diamond clasps. Egg-shell enamel, cream white on-black, is a favorite material this winter for vanity cases, cigarette boxes and handbag accessories.

Black-White Mode Influences Jewelry

Paris.—(AP)—Even up-to-date jewelry shows a tendency to be black and white this season as a result of French preoccupation with magpie modes.

The real article employs onyx and diamonds extensively in many smart forms. The imitation follows with black enamel and crystal. Dressmakers are working hand in hand with the jewelers in some cases, to further the cause of black and white.

Cheruit sponsors a simple ornament, used both as bracelet and necklace, of tiny diamond slides on a black cord which terminates in a ball of onyx. Another dressmaker shows a bracelet of alternating diamond oblongs and onyx circles.

The newest wrist-watch is as narrow as the silver and onyx link bracelet on which it is mounted. The links are long and narrow, and there are three rows of them, the two outer ones of silver and the inner of onyx.

There are many types of black and white bracelets, but the most effective, as well as expensive, versions are frequently onyx and diamonds worked in modernistic manner.

POINTERS FOR PARENTS

One day a woman was showing a friend over her new house, when opening the door of the room occupied by her two little girls she was dismayed to find everything in a clutter. The twin beds had been bounced on, jumped on, and somersaulted on, until they were nothing short of a mess. The bureau drawers were pulled out, shoes and stockings lay around under chairs, the closet door stood wide open, revealing the jumble within; everything was in confusion. She closed the door hastily and apologized. "I never saw such children. They can't seem to learn the meaning of order. I had that room spick and span this morning. Do you have any trouble, Mrs. Smith."

Whether Mrs. Smith did or not we cannot say, but this much we might give long odds to being true. It would depend on Mother Smith herself a good bit whether the children were neat or not neat in their habits, and caring for their room.

As it happened, the children of the lady who was so distressed over the topsy-turvy of her youngsters had come by their carelessness honestly. She had tried to train them to keep their bureau drawers closed and in order. She had talked about jumbling beds until she was tired. Probably half a dozen times a day she had said, "Margaret! Elizabeth! Look at that closet door standing open! Pick up your shoes! Throw those soiled stockings in the clothes hamper! Do this. Do that. Don't you know that little ladies keep their room in order?"

Now no general can inspect troops with a button off his coat, a day's growth of beard on his face, and soiled boots on his feet.

If the mother of the little girls had bene more careful of her own room she would have had less trouble teaching them about theirs.

True, hers was not quite so bad, but it was untidy enough for them to get the idea that it didn't greatly matter. She sat on the edge of her bed to change her shoes. Hair pins and powder and soiled gloves littered her dresser. Her curtain was pulled back to let in the light. Of course she was busy and there was every excuse for her.

But it was just one of the many object lessons that parents are likely to overlook in training children in correct habits.

In the end she would have saved herself work and many words, as well, by being more meticulous.

"Word upon word and precept upon precept," says the Bible. I would add to that, "example upon example."

Children will learn as much by sight as they will by hearing, and perhaps more.

Mrs. James Beacher's new ermine opera wrap, with a lovely cushion collar, has a gorgeous pink velvet lining.

The newest wrist-watch is as narrow as the silver and onyx link bracelet on which it is mounted. The links are long and narrow, and there are three rows of them, the two outer ones of silver and the inner of onyx.

There are many types of black and white bracelets, but the most effective, as well as expensive, versions are frequently onyx and diamonds worked in modernistic manner.

Costly handbags share the black and white tendency, some of the finest of them being antelope, or suede, with onyx and diamond clasps. Egg-shell enamel, cream white on-black, is a favorite material this winter for vanity cases, cigarette boxes and handbag accessories.

One day a woman was showing a friend over her new house, when opening the door of the room occupied by her two little girls she was dismayed to find everything in a clutter. The twin beds had been bounced on, jumped on, and somersaulted on, until they were nothing short of a mess. The bureau drawers were pulled out, shoes and stockings lay around under chairs, the closet door stood wide open, revealing the jumble within; everything was in confusion. She closed the door hastily and apologized. "I never saw such children. They can't seem to learn the meaning of order. I had that room spick and span this morning. Do you have any trouble, Mrs. Smith."

Whether Mrs. Smith did or not we cannot say, but this much we might give long odds to being true. It would depend on Mother Smith herself a good bit whether the children were neat or not neat in their habits, and caring for their room.

As it happened, the children of the lady who was so distressed over the topsy-turvy of her youngsters had come by their carelessness honestly. She had tried to train them to keep their bureau drawers closed and in order. She had talked about jumbling beds until she was tired. Probably half a dozen times a day she had said, "Margaret! Elizabeth! Look at that closet door standing open! Pick up your shoes! Throw those soiled stockings in the clothes hamper! Do this. Do that. Don't you know that little ladies keep their room in order?"

Now no general can inspect troops with a button off his coat, a day's growth of beard on his face, and soiled boots on his feet.

If the mother of the little girls had bene more careful of her own room she would have had less trouble teaching them about theirs.

True, hers was not quite so bad, but it was untidy enough for them to get the idea that it didn't greatly matter. She sat on the edge of her bed to change her shoes. Hair pins and powder and soiled gloves littered her dresser. Her curtain was pulled back to let in the light. Of course she was busy and there was every excuse for her.

But it was just one of the many object lessons that parents are likely to overlook in training children in correct habits.

In the end she would have saved herself work and many words, as well, by being more meticulous.

"Word upon word and precept upon precept," says the Bible. I would add to that, "example upon example."

Children will learn as much by sight as they will by hearing, and perhaps more.

THE ARMY OF SHADOWS.

The Grand Army of the Republic has been invited to hold a last national encampment in 1930 at Springfield, Ill., where Abraham Lincoln lies buried.

The end of the trail is not far away for the Grand Army. In a few more years the thinning ranks must stack arms forever. It would be extremely fitting and right for the last encampment to be held by the tomb of Lincoln.

The Civil War—the "irrepressible conflict" of the historians—was a long war and a bitter war. It cost the lives of a great many young men and left wounds that took many decades to heal. But it gave the country unity which will last forever. And it gave us something more, something less tangible but no less precious; a great heritage of heroism and endurance.

Lincoln already is something like a myth. The magnificent memorial at Washington, that raises its shining pillars over a clear pool, is more than a memorial to a former president. It is, in a way, a symbol of all the things that our democracy holds dearest, an everlasting beacon dedicated to a figure that grows greater with the passing years.

The Grand Army, too, is something like that. It is not simply a collection of gray-haired, bent old men in blue coats and campaign hats. It is an army of shadows, marching forever ahead of us down the road to the future. Like Lincoln, it has met death and is deathless. It will endure as long as our country will endure.

In every age, men have tended to grow dissatisfied with their own times. They have comforted themselves, and drawn hope for the future, by looking back to earlier days of greatness, when there was more courage and less meanness. The Civil War period is, for us, the time when there were giants. To unite, in one ceremony, homage to the Grand Army and to Lincoln could not fail to stimulate and encourage us.

And the blue uniform ought not to be the only one in evidence at this encampment. Somewhere there should be a bit of gray. For the Grand Army does not march alone on its road to immortality. It is accompanied by another shadowy host; a host that it wrestled and fought with all the way from the swamps of Mississippi to the rolling farmlands of Pennsylvania; a host that showed heroism and fidelity equal to its own. There should be a place, somewhere in the last reunion, for the warriors of the Confederacy. They, too, were giants.

It would be a fine thing, this last reunion. The Grand Army has done a great deal for us. Soon it will swing off forever, marching into the starless night to join the ragged heroes of Bunker Hill and Valley Forge. Before it goes we ought to make occasion to give it a final cheer. And what place more fitting than the place where Lincoln sleeps?

THREE GENEROUS SONS.

A 72-year-old man who lives in East Bridgewater, Mass., got into the news in an unusual way the other day.

He had his three sons called into court on non-support charges. They came and testified that they contributed $5 apiece per week to his support. They had learned, however, that he had been going to movies and making little trips to Boston. So they stopped paying it. They were willing to support him, but they hated extravagance. The judge ordered them to resume the payments, but ruled that the district probate officer would henceforth supervise the old man's expenditures.

One wonders just what an old man is supposed to do with himself, anyway, and just what a son's duty to an aged father is. Fifteen dollars a week is not a large income by any standard, and going to movies is hardly sinful dissipation.

And—just how proud of themselves ought these three brothers to feel?

TOURISTS AND SKULLS.

Some of the things that people do are rather discouraging to one who likes to believe the best about human nature.

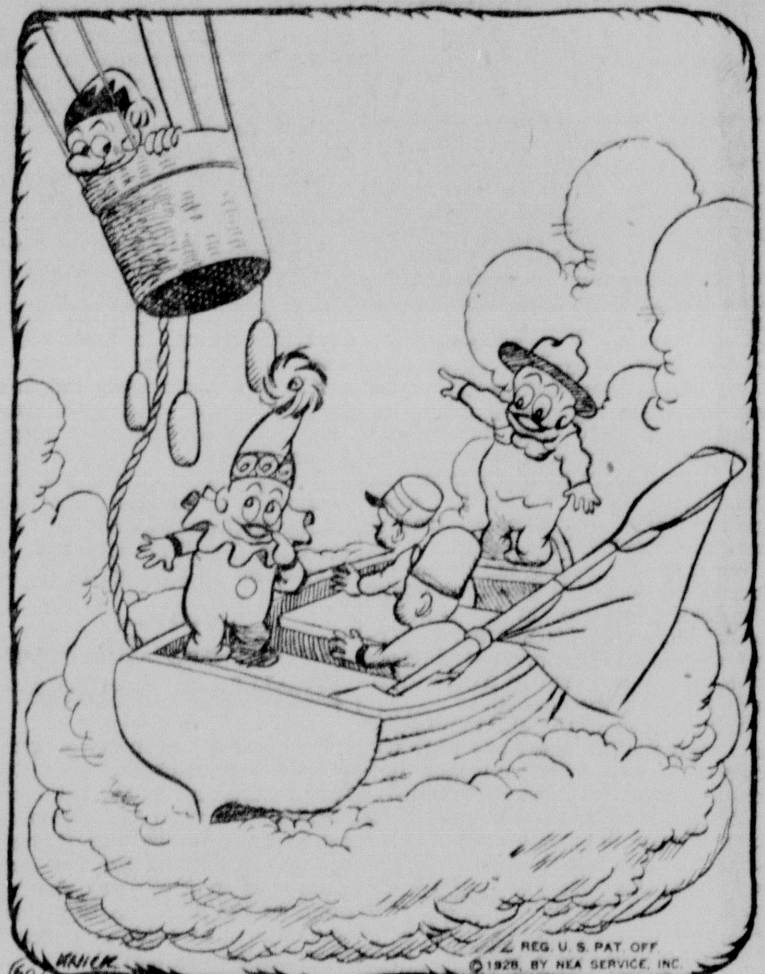

At the great battlefield of Verdun, the authorities are having a great deal of trouble with tourists. The tourists poke about the battlefield looking for bones. They prod into the ground, dig up skulls, flourish them with glee and cart them off—to do Heaven knows what with them. It would take a peculiar sort of person to take any pride in a souvenir of that kind.

One Argentine tourist company, it seems, even furnishes guides to the parties it sends to Verdun.

A thing like that is, we repeat, rather discouraging. The hundreds of thousands of heroic French and German soldiers who died at Verdun would have felt inspired, surely, if in their last hours they could have foreseen what would happen only 12 years later.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY UNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

On through the air the rowboat sped, and Clowdy sighed. "Oh my, I dread to think of what would happen if the anchor rope should break. We're riding safe now, in the air, but take a look away down there. The sea's below, and if we fall, an awful splash we'll make."

"Don't be a pessimistic lad," said Scouty. "We should all be glad that we've a chance to ride like this. I think we're safe and sound. As long as we are having fun away up here, right near the sun, I'd rather be right where I am than down there on the ground."

Just then a voice broke through the air. It said, "Hey! Don't you fret down there. The rope is very strong and it will hold you good and tight. I'm trying to give you all a thrill, and all I ask is, please sit still. As long as you obey me, everything will be all right."

"I know who called," wee Copy

cried. "I see him now. He's trying to hide. There's someone in that small balloon. Look! Can't you see him now?" The others peered up through the air, and Copy shouted, "Sure! He's there! It's just a funny little man who's fooling us somehow."

The rowboat then began to rise, while all the Tynmites strained their eyes to see the little man again. They wondered who he was. It wasn't long until he cried, "I guess I'll have to end your ride. Now don't be scared, but closely watch just what your rowboat does."

What happened then amused the crowd of Tynmites. They neared a cloud, and with a swoop the rowboat quickly settled down on it. One Tiny shouted, "What a thrill! Just look! Our boat is standing still. We're resting softly on this cloud. The boat just seems to fit."

(The Tynmites meet the Balloon man in the next story.)

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 18.

The Golden Text was, "This corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality" (1 Cor. 15:53).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus" (Galatians 3:26, 28).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man is not God, but like a ray of light which comes from the sun, man, the outcome of God, reflects God. Mortal mind and body are one, and that one is called man; but a mortal is not man, for man is immortal" (p. 250).

FATHER OF LATE PRESIDENT DEAD IN WESTERN CITY

Dr. George Harding Passed Away this Morning in Santa Anna

Santa Anna, Cal., Nov. 18—(AP)—Dr. George Harding, father of the late President Warren G. Harding, died this morning as the result of a paralytic stroke last Friday. He was 85 years old. Dr. Harding came here two weeks ago from Marion, Ohio, to spend the winter.

Dr. Harding, prominent in fraternal affairs, activities of the Red Cross and in medical societies, with a lineage that dated back into early American history, was born June 12, 1844 in Morrow county, Ohio. He was the only son of Charles A. and Mary A. (Crawford) Harding, pioneers of that section of the state.

Dr. Harding traced his ancestral record back many generations. The original name was Harodene. On the maternal side the Crawford and the Davises were connected. Dr. Harding's maternal grandfather being a first cousin of Jefferson Davis. His grandmother Crawford was a first cousin of Alexander Stephens, a leading statesman for the southern cause.

Dr. Harding bore the name of his great-great-grandfather, Governor Tryon of Connecticut. He was educated in Morrow county, attending the rural school at Bloominggrove, Old Ohio Central college at Iberia, Ohio, and the Cleveland Homeopathic College. He was graduated from the medical school in 1873, following which he continued to practice at Caledonia until 1882, when he moved to Marion. He built the Star office block on East Center street, Marion, and occupied an upstairs corner room for more than 40 years. For many years he was an active member of the national and state homeopathic societies and of the Round Table Homeopathic Medical Society in Columbus.

Prominent in G. A. R.
He also was conspicuous in national and state G. A. R. circles, serving as surgeon general at one time of the national body of civil war veterans.

In 1864, Dr. Harding was married to Miss Phoebe Elizabeth Dickerson, of Morrow county. She died in 1909 in Marion. To them the following children were born: Almira and Charles, both of whom died when children and are buried at Caledonia; Warren G. Harding, who was nominated for the presidency of the United States by the Chicago Republican convention in 1920 on his father's birthday; Charity Harding, who was called "Char," and who is the wife of E. E. Rosenberg, of Santa Anna, California; Mary Harding, who was named after Dr. Harding's mother and who died after teaching for many years in the state school for the blind at Columbus, Ohio; Miss Abigail V. Harding, known to her intimates as Daisy, a teacher in the Marion public schools; Caroline Harding, who is the wife of the Rev. Heber Votaw, superintendent of federal prisons and for 15 years a missionary in India, and Dr. George Tryon Harding, Jr., called "Deacon" by his father, and who is now conducting a rest home and sanitarium at Worthington, Ohio.

Fraternal Associations
At the age of 77, Dr. Harding was married again to Miss Alice Severns. Dr. Harding's fraternal associations were with the Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias. He had been supreme commander and supreme medical director of the Order of the Red Cross. Always he was a friend of all religious work, identifying himself with the Baptist church, although he often said he was a "liberal" in his theological views. "I regard a man for what he is and not for his particular religious connections or church relation," he frequently said.

Charles Alexander Harding, father of Dr. Harding was born April 8, 1820, and died at Bloominggrove, Morrow county, April 3, 1878. He was the son of George Tryon Harding, who was born in Luzerne county, Pennsylvania, June 15, 1790, and died at Bloominggrove, January 9, 1860, moving to Morrow county in 1820.

Amos Harding, great-grandfather of Dr. Harding is the only member of the Harding family of whom accurate data is obtainable. He was born in Deer Park, now Port Jervis, Orange county, N. J., March 10, 1764. In 1777, he went with his father to the historic Wyoming valley of Pennsylvania, settling in Exeter township, near Wilkesbarre, Luzerne county, in that was then known as "Connecticut Reserve." Their home was close to a farm owned by Jonathan Slocum and Slocum's father-in-law, Ebenezer Tripp. The region was then a wilderness, but was rapidly being populated by settlers coming in from Connecticut.

When President-Elect Hoover Addresses Nation

This remarkable new picture of President-elect Herbert Hoover shows the nation's next chief executive as he appears when addressing millions over radio microphone. Mr. Hoover is expected to speak to the people frequently by means of this agency.

The long series of contests for the possession of land between settlers and the Pennsylvania authorities culminated in the summer of 1778, when the Iroquois, Seneca and Delaware Indians, under the leadership of "Indian" Butler, a Tory; Queen Esther of the Iroquois, and other savages took the war path against the settlers of the Wyoming valley. They destroyed every settlement in their path. Finally they reached Fort Jenkins, commanded by Captain Stephen Harding, at the time. This was June 30, 1778. Practically all of the immediate members of the Harding family were gathered at the fort, and historic records show that "everyone able to point a gun fought with a desperation as only one can when fighting for life." After three days the members of the fort "fell back down the river to Fort York."

It was at Fort Jenkins that Benjamin and Stukeley Harding, sons of Captain Stephen Harding, were killed. The defenders of Fort York, under Col. Zebulon Butler, numbered 230 enrolled men—many of the minors—and 70 boys and old men, a total of 300. In the battle that followed with the British and Indians July 3, 1778, about all of the Hardings were wiped out, only 140 of the 300 escaping. Among the survivors was Abraham Harding, father of Amos Harding, who moved to Richland county, Ohio, from Pennsylvania, in 1820. He died in 1839 and was buried at Bloominggrove the site of which is on a part of the land he purchased on coming to Ohio. His grave in the little old cemetery is marked with a plain marble slab, on which is inscribed:

In Memory
Amos Harding
Who Died
July 10, 1839
In the 74th year of his age.
Amos Harding was the father of 17 children, of whom 12 had families. Only one of the 12—Benjamin—died under 70. Two—William and Wealthy—lived to be over 90.

Fred High Says—

Of the articles contributed by the writer during the past three months, one of the most widely discussed is the one dealing with the canvassing salesman or "peddler," as he is generally called.

In that article we pointed out the futility of trying to solve this vexing problem by city and town licenses and ordinances and state legislation.

In this article I wish to point one of the ways that merchants can meet the "peddler" or canvasser.

The writer had charge of the Twelfth Annual Convention of the Cotton States Merchants Association held at Memphis, Tennessee, on August 25, 26 and 27, 1925. This gathering represented 11,000 retail merchants in Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas and Southern Illinois. Besides being scheduled for an address each day, I helped to select the other speakers, acted as chairman of the Convention and directed the discussions.

Knowing that the competition of the direct salespeople was one of the toughest problems these retail merchants had to solve, in order to get first hand information we arranged to have as one of the principal speakers, the most successful clothing manufacturer selling on the direct sales plan, Mr. Arthur Nash, President of the A. Nash Company. Mr. Nash's entire business had been built on that plan. He was with us the three days of that Convention and spoke each day and answered questions.

Here is something of Mr. Nash's history. Twelve years ago he was a hobo minister, riding the brake rods and preaching that the world was coming to an end in two years. When the two years were up and the world kept right on whirling through space, Mr. Nash ceased predicting quick transportation from this world into the next, and went to work.

A few years later the American people read tales of press and news stories about this man. Preachers preached sermons about Golden Rule Nash. Newspapers and magazines devoted page after page to what this man had achieved, telling of his rapid rise and how he had transformed a sweat shop into a Golden Rule Temple, where work and worship were so closely related that it was hard to separate them.

The facts were that in 1918 Arthur Nash organized a stock company and took over a sweat shop of twenty-nine underpaid workers, some of them crippled, and built it into a great factory so that by 1925 it was employing 6,000 workers. The company was first capitalized at $60,000. The first year there was a deficit of $4,000. At the time Mr. Nash was at the convention the capitalization was $3,000,000 and the gross business for the year of 1925 was $14,000,000.

In one of Mr. Nash's talks at the convention he, with a sly twinkle in his eye, said: "I often have hard work to convince my fellow ministers and religious brethren that the Golden Rule really works, but I have no difficulty at all in convincing my Jewish competitors."

With the aid of a blackboard, Mr. Nash showed, step by step, how he was able to manufacture a suit of clothes that sold for $23.50, and make more money on the suit than his neighbor competitor was making on a line that sold at $35.00.

Then he demonstrated, step by step, how the delegates to the convention could handle a line of men's suits that would retail at $24.00 a suit and make more money than they were making on the $35.00 suits they were then handling.

Many of the delegates returned home, put in the new line, and adopted the new method—working for quicker sales and smaller profits on individual sales, with the result that they have since been meeting the competition of the direct sales people. And they have met it on the only basis that spells success for any local merchant.

That the A. Nash Company business was not built on Mr. Nash's personality, but on sound business principles, is shown by the fact that the business goes right on since Mr. Nash's death.

Local merchants should study trends of business, just as their former hobo preacher did. In another article we will tell how Elmer Hart, of Long Prairie, Minnesota that same year (1925) did a gross business of $400,000 in that little town of 1,300 population.

NO MORE PILES

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. THANKSGIVING
DATES VARIED
TO YEAR 1866

Has Not Always Fallen
on Last Thursday of Eleventh Month

Washington—(AP)—Not all Thanksgivings have fallen on Thursday, as many have supposed, and the first one was not named by Governor Bradford in 1621.

Records at the library of congress concerning the big day of pumpkin pies and turkeys reveal enlightening facts concerning the origin and erratic leaping about the calendar of this old holiday which is popularly supposed to have been as stable as the sun.

Its origin can literally be traced to the Land of Canaan for in the book of Judges is told of the harvest celebration in "the house of God," and this later appeared among the Hebrews as the "Feast of Tabernacles."

After the Pilgrims came to America they established a time of thanksgiving and rejoicing for their first harvest which had yielded well. In October, 1621, Governor Bradford ordered a three-day feast and celebration to which Chief Massasoit and other Indian friends were invited. Many believe this to be the first Thanksgiving from which the modern celebration dates but the records at the library of congress do not show that there was any special religious service during the period of feasting.

The first Thanksgiving day after the United States became a nation was Thursday, November 26, 1789, and was proclaimed by George Washington. The next Thanksgiving day was Thursday, February 19, 1795. From that time on the day followed an erratic course, hurdling over three years until President John Adams in 1789 decided to appoint Wednesday, May 9, as the time for national Thanksgiving.

May must have been a little too warm for turkey and pie, for the next year President Adams set April 25, President Madison proclaimed a Thanksgiving day in each of the four years he was in office, and he was a consistent Thursday man, but selected a different month for each one: the third Thursday in August, 1812, the second Thursday in September, 1813, Thursday, January 12, 1814, and the second Thursday in April, 1815.

No more Thanksgiving proclamations were issued for 47 years. Then April 10, 1862, after "signal victories to the land and naval forces," President Lincoln recommended to the people of the United States that thanks be given at their next weekly assemblages in their accustomed place of public worship. Thanksgiving days also proclaimed. Thanksgiving days for Thursday, August 6, 1863, the last Thursday of November, 1863, and the last Thursday of November, 1864.

The holiday really began to jog along in an established order in 1866 when President Johnson began naming the last Thursday of November for that and the succeeding years he was in office. Beginning with the proclamation of 1870, that date became generally accepted as the official Thanksgiving. Two days were set apart in 1876, the centennial year, July 4 and November 30. There was also an extra Thanksgiving, April 30, 1889, the day marking the 100th anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington.

Rickets are Preventable

By Otto H. Leber, M. D.
New York City

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. The headquarters of the Gorgas Memorial are at 1331 G. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

Rickets is the most common nutritional disease of childhood in this part of the world. It occurs chiefly in the first two years of life, more especially in the latter half of the first year and the first half of the second year.

Most people associate rickets, and correctly so, with changes in the growing bones, changes that produce such deformities as bow legs, knock knees and pigeon breast. These deformities are brought about by a disturbance in the deposit of lime salts in the bones, thus making them less able to withstand the increasing stress and to bear the weight of a growing child.

But beyond these effects, serious enough as they are, there are changes in the child's body, such as in the blood, the muscles and the nervous system, that produce an important influence on health at this period of life.

Nor must we assume that this disease is seen only in poorer homes and in undernourished children. Frequently it occurs, on the contrary, in the child apparently well-nourished and of normal weight.

Rickets is not only one of the most widespread but one of the oldest recognized diseases of infancy. During all this time there have been many conflicting theories as to its cause, and even today authorities are still at odds as to the exact nature of the disease. We now know enough of its nature, however, to be convinced that we can both prevent it before its occurrence and cure it after its appearance, although many of the deformities produced may remain throughout

They're Elected to Congress

Four women were re-elected to Congress and three others, including a daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, added to the number, according to returns of the November election. The new congresswomen are: (1), Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, Florida; (2), Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Illinois; (3), Mrs. Ruth Pratt, New York. The four re-elected are: (4), Mrs. Mary T. Norton, New Jersey; (5), Mrs. Florence Kahn, California; (6), Mrs. John W. Laungley, Kentucky; (7), Mrs. Edith Rogers, Massachusetts. They will make up the largest representation women have ever had in Congress.

the remainder of the child's life as a handicap of greater or less extent.

The two most active measures recognized in the prevention and cure of this disease are sunlight and cod liver oil. The vital influence of the former is seen in the far greater incidence of this disease in the early spring after a winter of short days and lessened opportunity for exposure to the sun.

In large cities, or where the climate or season of the year prevents a child having the full measure of sunshine necessary for the best of health, the mercury arc lamp producing ultraviolet rays have been used in skilled hands to give the same or even better effect.

It must not be thought that the sun or ultraviolet rays produce merely a local effect on the skin. They have an important constitutional effect in promoting proper food assimilation in a manner as yet unknown.

In addition to this we know that the breast-fed child is less susceptible to the disease than the bottle-fed, also that proper hygiene, care, and nourishment adapted to the infant's age, are of the greatest importance.

A good deal of our knowledge of the prevention and cure of Rickets is of comparatively recent standing. But with the necessary measures so simple, so inexpensive and easily adopted, another few years should show a great decrease in this disease, and in another generation perhaps we shall look in vain for a case of a rickety child.

TRIBUTE PAID TO
FORMER DIXONITE
BY HIS MINISTER

Long Beach, Calif., Paper
Publishes Praise for George Krinbill

The following clipping from the Long Beach, California Morning Sun of November 11 will be of interest to the many old friends of Professor Krinbill and his family in this vicinity.

Editor, The Sun:

Love's tribute is sometimes extravagant, especially to those not well acquainted with the one to whom love is expressed. To this man so worthy of "love extravagant" one feels the utter helplessness to write the real words, to express the heart and soul without too much of seeming human element.

No one will ever know the great cloud of witnesses that would mingle their voices in words of commendation to this man whose life was full of honorable deeds among his fellow men. The deeds, words kindly, truly spoken, the smile that lifts life's burdens, the kindly look for the eyes that always spoke of a kinder heart beneath, who can measure? And best it is for us that we treasure these sweet memories in our hearts until they master us and enable us to make our lives show "some light divine" also.

Mr. Krinbill, a resident of Long Beach sixteen years, went to his eternal reward quite suddenly Monday morning, November 5, 1928. The beautiful services were held in the J. J. Motell chapel Wednesday forenoon and were largely attended by friends of Mr. Krinbill and family. The abundance of floral gifts attested the preciousness of friendship from a very large circle of those expressing love and sympathy in this hour of sorrow.

As a prelude to the services, A. O. T. Astenius played many of Mr. Krinbill's favorite organ numbers. The Mozart String trio played Dvorak's "Goin' Home." A quartet composed of friends of Mr. Krinbill and associates in musical organizations, composed of Mrs. Ruth Bennett, Mrs. Agnes Kalk, Robert Edmonds and Joseph Maltby, sang "The Home of the Soul" and "The Rock That is Higher Than I."

The pallbearers were members of the Long Beach Horseshoe club, of which Mr. Krinbill had been secretary for many years. They were S. W. Williams, W. F. Bell, I. H. Pearson, H. W. Menkie, W. R. Bradford and U. S. Swegert.

Three ministers had some part in the beautiful services. The Rev. Don S. Ford read the scriptures. Thomas Hambley, D. D., who made the remarks based upon more than fifty years of acquaintance, a most tender and loving tribute. The closing of the services was by Charles F. Ensign, D. D., who offered the prayer. The organ postlude was a number that was a great favorite of Mr. Krinbill, "Love's Old Sweet Song." Interment was in beautiful Angeles Abbey.

PRESIDENT-ELECT STARTS HIS TOUR OF SOUTH AMERICA

Given Great Bon Voyage by Palo Alto Citizens this Morn

Palo Alto, Calif., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Two middle aged men and a University of California student were in jail here today charged with disturbing the peace "by displaying Communist banners" at the railroad station while President-elect Herbert Hoover was waiting to board a train for San Pedro last night on the first leg of his South American good will tour.

Officials said they doubted if Mr. Hoover saw either the men or their banners because at the moment of the arrest he faced a battery of cameras for flashlight pictures.

The prisoners were hustled away to jail and held without bail. Their hearing was set tentatively for today. Police exhibited two captured banners, one reading "down with imperialism" and the other marked "Communism."

The prisoners were V. V. Dart of Oakland; James Arnett of Redwood City, and James Jones, who, police said, claimed to be a university student registered from Pasadena. Two Palo Alto women accompanied the trio, but were released by police. Their names were not divulged. Secret service agents questioned the prisoners, but left the case to local courts.

BY JAMES L. WEST
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Hoover Train Enroute to San Pedro, Calif., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Bound on a good-will mission for which there is no precedent in American history, President-elect Herbert Hoover moved today toward San Pedro to embark upon his voyage to South America.

Bidding farewell to the college town the President-elect boarded his special train at Palo Alto last night for a journey which is to carry him into most of the countries of the western hemisphere before bringing him back to Florida a month before his inauguration on March 4.

Before him, as he boarded the battleship Maryland for the voyage southward down the Pacific coast, lay Corinto as the first port of call, where he is to pay the first visit that any President or President-elect of the United States has ever made to Nicaragua.

Afterward, although the definite itinerary for the entire trip has not been announced, is to come a stop at Balboa for a brief inspection of the Panama Canal, and then the long voyage down the rim of South America to Callao, Peru. There he will begin a series of formal visits that will mark his progress across South America.

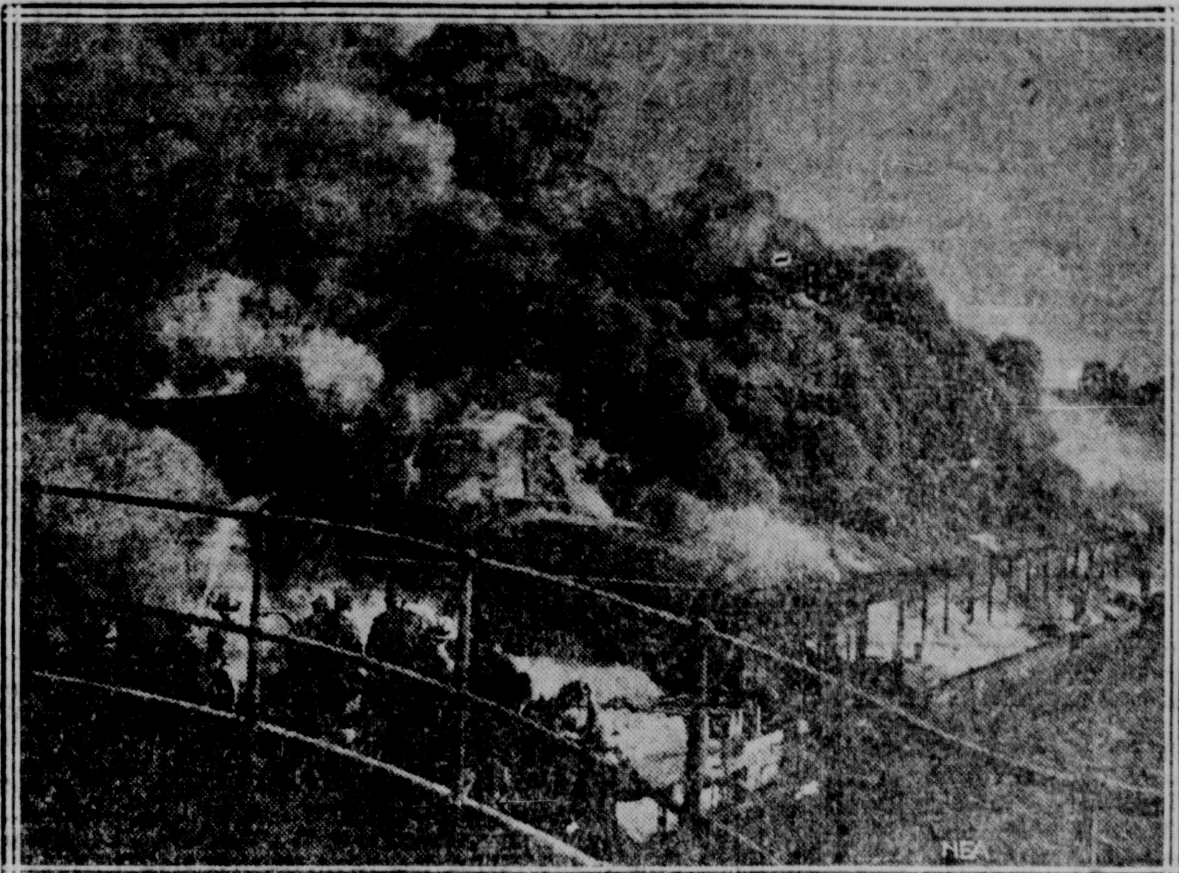

Popular Farewell
The departure of the President-elect brought hundreds of his neighbors and fellow townsmen to the little station to shout to him bon voyage.

His neighbors crowded about the train as it stood waiting for the final signal and received from him a characteristic wave of the hand when it moved out of the station into the darkness for the journey down the mainland toward the port of Los Angeles.

The President-elect carried with him the blessing of the Chaplain of Stanford University, Dr. Charles Gardner, who in closing his service yesterday that this son of Stanford might be successful in carrying out his mission of peace and good will. The closing hymn of the service also had been one which carried a prayer for those who travel by sea.

To Frame Itinerary
Henry P. Fletcher, American Ambassador to Italy, who is to accompany him on the trip as a special representative of the State Department, has preceded Mr. Hoover to Los Angeles and spent last night on board the battleship California. He was to join Mr. Hoover at San Pedro and board the Maryland with him. After a conference between the two the itinerary for the trip was to be made known.

Including Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, their son Allan, and Ambassador Fletcher, there were twelve members of the President-elect's personal party, exclusive of the twenty-six newspaper correspondents and news and motion picture camera-men who were to make the trip. Among the members of Mr. Hoover's personal party were his personal Secretary, George Akerson; George Barr Baker, Commander Augustin T. Beauregard, a naval aide; and a State Department interpreter at Los Angeles.

BY ALVIN HALLMAN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
New York.—(AP)—When Herbert Hoover, United States president-elect, left San Pedro, Calif., on a 40 day good will tour of South and Central America he was brought face to face with the problems which have beset the countries of the new world since their very national inception. He has said his trip will not have its diplomatic aspects, and that it is to be made only in the interest of broadening his own knowledge of the countries of South America, the only continent on which he has not yet set foot.

But it is to be doubted if the president-elect can visit Peru without hearing something of Tacna-Arica, Colombia without having mentioned to him at least once the subjects of American petroleum rights, Chile without learning of troublesome nitrate difficulties, Bolivia without considering that country's earnest desire for an outlet to the Pacific, and in the Argentine he is almost certain to hear a great deal about beef and troublesome tariffs on wheat and flax seed.

Troublesome Questions
These are the questions which not only have troubled the relations of the countries themselves but have stirred what discord there has been between them and the United States, their powerful neighbor to the north. In negotiations tending to settlement of each of these problems the North American hand has been seen at one time or another; editorial opinion on the prospective visit of Mr. Hoover in the countries involved is that despite his other intentions various phases of these matters will be brought to his attention.

The tentative itinerary for the president-elect indicates he will travel something like 17,500 miles from the time he leaves San Pedro, California, aboard the battleship Maryland until he returns to Washington.

At Valparaiso, Chile, he will leave the Maryland behind him, and with his party will board a train which will take him to Santiago, Chile's capital city.

Engineering Achievement
From Santiago, Chile, to Buenos Aires, capital of the Argentine, there is an expanse of some seven hundred miles traversed by the Trans-Andean railway, an example of engineering and railway construction that cannot fail to interest Mr. Hoover, the engineer, as will the country it crosses interest Mr. Hoover, the president. On the road a height of 19,000 feet above sea-level is reached, and at one of the highest points he will be able to see the famous statue of the Christ of the Andes, molded from melted cannon and placed there at the conclusion of the last hostilities between Chile and the Argentine.

Beneath the statue of the Christ, which looks upon the land of both countries, is the inscription, "Soon-er will these mountains crumble into dust than the great people of Argentine and Chile break the peace they have sworn at the feet of Christ, the Redeemer."

At Buenos Aires the president-elect will visit the sixth city in size in the world, with only New York and Chicago exceeding its two and a quarter million population in the western hemisphere. Montevideo, capital of Uruguay, lies across the La Plata estuary from Buenos Aires, while Asuncion, capital of Paraguay, is available by railroad from this city.

It is a vast territory which the president-elect will visit on a program far more ambitious than ever attempted before by either United States president or president-elect. It is a territory which many business men see as the trade-empire of the United States, and a territory in which European encroachment has already threatened United States commerce. And it is a territory in which reputed policies of the United States have been subjected to their severest indictment.

There will be receptions, celebrations and ceremonies galore before Mr. Hoover returns to the United States, probably early in January, but critics at home and abroad believe he will have laid the foundation during his 40 days trip for the best relations between the countries of the western hemisphere during his four year tenure of office.

NEWS OF THE CHURCHES

CHRISTIAN CHURCH NOTES

This evening, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Emmert, 1006 E. Peoria Ave., will open their home to the November Workers' Conference of the Bible school. One chief item that the conference will consider will be the detailed plans for a record Home Missions offering from the school, Sunday, Nov. 25.

Tuesday afternoon and evening, the minister will speak in the sessions of the Carroll-Whiteside church convention, held at Rock Falls, Wednesday, Pres. Eastman of the Ladies' Aid society calls for a full attendance of the society, at the church, for the "democratic luncheon," with the cleaning-up of the lower story of the building as the afternoon order of the day.

Mr. Lois Fellows' home, 723 S. Peoria Ave., will be the scene of the Christian Endeavor Social, Thursday evening.

The presence of the four Eureka students in church services yesterday and their insistent invitation to "Dad's Day," next Friday, added inspiration to the assemblies, and a delegation is planning to attend the "feast of home" for fathers, at the college.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The week end during the Evangelistic Campaign was a memorable one. The Singing Evangelists, Rev. and Mrs. Kindig sang to large and appreciative audiences at every service. Mr. Kindig took charge of the Sunday School, after Professor Baldwin had taken the lesson and in a splendid talk on "Decision" pressed home the necessity of choosing the narrow way in preference to the broad way. Many of our young people came to the altar. Mr. Kindig conducted the morning song service and Mr. and Mrs. Kindig delighted everybody with their wonderful singing.

The Pastor spoke on "Meeting the King" using II Samuel 19 as his Scripture lesson. He said: "The reinstatement of King David is a wonderful illustration of the enthroning of Jesus. His people had rebelled under his son Absalom, and when the rebellion had been dealt with and Absalom slain, they began to repent and were anxious to bring the King back again. First to greet him were his near of kin—the House of Judah. Then came those who were ashamed of their conduct like Shimei the rebel who humbles himself at David's feet. Then Mephibosheth the Unready who was not prepared in his dress and body for the king's coming. Then Barzillai the Devoted true to David all through his exile, comes all the way to Rogelim to greet him. Chisham the Ordinary Man follows in his train and to them all the king extends a kindly welcome. Our King Jesus comes to us this morning with the message, 'Make Jesus King' and if we will enthroned Him, we shall be welcomed by Him and live with Him through all Eternity."

In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Kindig went with Mr. Marshall to the Sugar Grove church and their service in song was much appreciated. Mr. Marshall spoke on "The Price of Discipleship."

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders droop under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Checks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Clogged bowels and inactive liver cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanishes and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets will save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Evangelist J. L. Lobaugh will preach every night this week except Saturday. Services begin at 7:30. Song service in charge of the pastor.

We preach Christ crucified, risen and coming again. A cordial welcome awaits you at every service.

MRS. JOHN BACHMAN.
(Contributed)
Sarah Louisa Harrison was born May 18, 1865, at Clinton, Iowa, and after an illness of intense suffering passed away at her home in Kingdom community near Dixon, on Nov. 15, 1928.

Her parents who were Norman and Susan Harrison were one of the oldest families of Clinton, Ia., her father having been the first white child born at that place. Her mother passed away when she was but a little girl and her father died about ten years ago.

She received her education and was graduated from the Lyons, Ia., high school, later teaching near Dixon. It was during this period that she met John H. Bachman and to whom she was married on May 15th, 1884. With him she has lived in Dixon and at her late home all of her lifetime.

To this union were born two tense interest that is manifest. Last evening was considered as "Family night" and when the toll was taken of the attendance it was recorded as follows: 49 families represented; 19 families with every member of the family present. A number of families had six members present. Following a stirring message by Evangelist J. L. Lobaugh with an altar call, two young fathers and mothers came and accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour. God has sent in to magnify what the Holy Spirit, speaking through the Apostle Paul, calls the "Foolishness of Preaching." We live in a day when so many have turned from the faith and the "gospels" are so numerous, that a definition of the Gospel is imperative.

We are not ignorant of the other "gospels" which are now being offered as substitutes for the one true gospel. Among the many false gospels are "the gospel of philosophy," "the gospel of science," "the gospel of humanitarianism," and others which have steadily found their way into modern pulpits. There is much said about the "social gospel," "reconstructed manhood," and "civic reform." These are all false gospels which are being exalted by the modernists. We do not offer a "new definition" or a new interpretation of the Gospel—the Gospel is sufficiently defined in these words: "Jesus Christ and Him Crucified" (I Cor. 2:2). The heaven-appointed center of all true preaching is this, and to leave that center is to lose the Gospel. The Gospel is the proclamation of the peerless dignity of the person and perfection of the work of Jesus Christ.

daughters, Myra—Mrs. L. N. Brennan of Wilmette, Ill., and Estella—Mrs. P. H. Senger of Franklin Grove, Ill. Mrs. Bachman is survived by her husband, two daughters and five grandchildren, and one brother, Dr. C. N. Harrison of Fulton, Ill. Another brother, Dr. Life Harrison passed away about 6 years ago.

For many years Mrs. Bachman has been a member of the Dixon Presbyterian church and was always an active and ardent worker in its various societies.

In her passing the community has lost a beautiful character whose thoughts were always for helpfulness to her friends and neighbors, and her family has lost a wife, mother, and devoted grandmother whose constant efforts were for their welfare.

CAN FORCE RATES.

Washington, Nov. 17.—(AP)—In an interpretive decision handed down today the Interstate Commerce Commission ruled that it was empowered under the Denison act of the last congress to order any railroad to make joint rates with Mississippi and other river barge lines without giving the railroads concerned opportunity to testify at public hearings. In addition the commission held that the Inland Waterways Corporation, controlled by the government and now operating barge lines on the Mississippi and Warrior river, has instituted a service of public necessity and convenience. Hereafter, any water line instituting service will be required to obtain from the commission a ruling that its service is in the interest of public convenience and necessity. The waterway line holding such a certificate; thereafter under the decision ask the commission for an order compelling railroads to make joint rates, giving such water lines proper division of revenue from such joint rates and put them into effect immediately.

AUTHOR OF "WHEN A GIRL LOVES" "LOVE FOR TWO"

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Fate introduces JERRY RAY, a shop girl, to ALESTER CARSTAIRS when he crashes his airplane into the camp she is sharing with her roommate, MYRTLE. She likes his pilot, DAN HARVEY, but Alester is struck by her beauty and shows her attention.

Dan appears to help her, but she takes her home. She is discharged from the store when she confesses about the dress. Jerry seeks another job, and she surprises one evening when Dan calls. He proposes and she tells him she does not believe in love, but agrees to marry for money. Alester drives Jerry out to the deserted camp where he makes advances, which she repulses. Dan happens by and Jerry makes a dash for it. She tells him she cannot take her, Jerry invites Dan, and she takes exception to Jerry's presence in Evelyn's home and an unpleasant scene ensues. Then Alester arrives.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXX

JERRY leaped from her chair beside Mrs. Starr's bed and stood poised in an uncertain attitude. Of course, she thought, Alester had assumed that she would come here without him. No, he had discovered that she'd asked Dan! Now there would be another scene possibly. She shrank from the thought of it.

"Where is he?" she asked Evelyn.

"I told him to join the other guests and I'd let you know that he was here," Evelyn replied. "I suppose he's in the living room. It wasn't very polite of me to leave him like that but I'm upset and . . ."

"Was he . . . excited?" Jerry inquired, moving toward the door.

"I didn't notice . . . yes, I think he was. Remember, I've only met him a few times. I can't say if it was my imagination or not but I rather think he looked different to-night."

"I believe I'd better get my things and go," Jerry said uneasily. "Good night, Mrs. Starr. I hope you will be feeling all right tomorrow."

She smiled back from the open door and then hurried out into the long narrow hall that led to the reception foyer. She could see Alester standing there before she reached it. He saw her, too, and came forward to meet her.

"Is Dan, Harvey here?" he asked pointedly.

Jerry gasped.

"What's the matter?" she countered in alarm.

"I went to his room and found your note on his drawer," Alester replied angrily.

"You read it?" Jerry could not restrain herself from saying in surprise.

"Certainly," Alester admitted readily, "when I recognized your handwriting. It was laying face upward. Will you tell me what you wanted with him at seven o'clock?"

"There's no reason why I shouldn't," Jerry reminded him. "Except that I don't like the way you ask me to."

"Well, you needn't bother," Alester retorted. "You wanted to hear from him after I telephoned you."

"That's right," Jerry agreed. "Evelyn had asked me to bring someone else if you couldn't come. There's nothing for you to get mad about over that, is there?"

"I won't have Dan Harvey taking you out," Alester declared warmly. "You could have come up here alone. And one thing is certain, I'm going to take you home."

JERRY lost her temper then. "No, you're not," she said. "I didn't let him take me home from Leontine's party, and anyway I'd like to know how you could come here when you told me your mother wanted you at home tonight," she added accusingly.

It rather surprised her that Alester appeared embarrassed by her question.

"She . . . er, changed her plans," he said evasively.

"Well, you needn't wait for me," Jerry returned emphatically. "I'm going home with Dan."

"If you do," Alester said threateningly, "I'll see that you don't go to Atlantic City with Weintz's show."

Jerry stared at him in astonishment. She hadn't dreamed that he cared so much about anything she might do. But to threaten her . . .

"You can't have me fired," she defied him. "Mr. Hule wouldn't stand for it. I've made good with him and that's all he asks. Mr. Weintz doesn't dare go over his head."

Alester smiled at her.

"Pretty clever, Jerry," he said admiringly. Her unexpected opposition to him had cooled his temper a trifle. It also served to remind him that Jerry was a stubborn little creature who couldn't be driven.

Just then Dan appeared down the hall, at the kitchen door. He saw Jerry and Alester and came toward them.

"Hello," he said, "

Chicago, Nov. 19—(AP)—After 16 years of chasing, Wisconsin had the golden fleece—the Big Ten football championship—cornered today—but just as in the fairy tale, a dragon blocked its way.

Minnesota's thundering horde which has crushed its way for an average of four touchdowns a game this season, was the menacing dragon which the Badgers must conquer. The battle, to be at Madison, is the outstanding event of the Big Ten game program Saturday.

Still hopeful of sharing the championship pie however, were Illinois, Iowa and Ohio State. If Minnesota, pushed out of the race by a pair of one-point defeats, should upset Wisconsin, at least one of them would rest on the pinnacle with the Badgers who so far have nothing but a tie to the finisher.

Illinois and Ohio State, which have been defeated but once, will clash for their big chance in another important game Champaign Saturday, while Iowa will tackle the lowly but dangerous Michigan eleven at Ann Arbor. If the Gophers defeat Wisconsin Iowa defeats Michigan and Illinois wins over Ohio State, or vice versa, three teams would be deadlocked for the title, a condition which has happened eleven times since 1896.

Two other games are on Saturday's card. Dartmouth's big green team invading Northwestern and Indiana and Purdue clashing in their traditional battle at Lafayette. None of the games have any importance in the championship standings.

Rising from a sea of mud and slush at Iowa Field, Wisconsin pushed its way to undisputed possession of first place in the title race Saturday by defeating Iowa's heretofore undefeated machine, 13 to 0. Doped to fall before the Hawkeyes' relentless line attack, the Badgers outplayed their heavier opponents.

Illinois found its long-lost scoring punch when it humbled Chicago, 40 to 0, on Stagg Field. The Chicago team, which ended its season with the game, was helpless before the Illinois attack.

Outside of Indiana's 6 to 0 triumph over Northwestern, other results Saturday were expected. Minnesota routed the Haskell Indians, 52 to 0; Ohio State defeated Muskingum, 39 to 0; Purdue coasted through to a 14 to 0 victory over Wabash, and Michigan had all it could do to defeat Michigan State, 3 to 0.

Saturday's game between Minnesota and Wisconsin promises to be a battle of smashes against passes unless the field is soggy. And if Wisconsin wins, Coach "Gloomy" Glen Thistlethwaite will have brought the Badgers out of the football wilderness in his second year.

New York, November 19—(AP)—The college football campaign approaches its big climax within the next two or three weeks with six of the seven major championship races still undecided.

In recent seasons have the contests for sectional, as well as national honors, been as wide open affairs as this year with a dizzy succession of upsets to keep matters scrambled in the east, south and west.

Today, with the end of the gridiron grapple in sight, only Nebraska appears to have a firm hold on any sectional title. The Cornhuskers have been tied by Pittsburgh and play the Army this week in their quest for honors over a wider stretch of territory but they need only to beat the Kansas Aggies to finish their Big Six conference schedule with a clean slate of five victories. They figure to do so no matter how they fare otherwise.

Carnegie, fresh from a victory over Notre Dame, heads the eastern parade, with Honyea Boston College to rival the Tartans' unblemished record, but Carnegie must hurdle New York University this week to stay on top. Anyone who has seen the N. Y. U. steamroller lately will testify this is quite an obstacle.

Army and Princeton, neither beaten nor tied by any eastern team, are prepared to enter into the argument while Pennsylvania is also ready to step up with a claim for recognition if anything should happen to Carnegie or Boston College.

Wisconsin has scaled the Big Ten peak over the prostrate forms of Iowa but the Badgers have their old foe,

Minnesota, to play this week before they can make any definite claim. Georgia Tech, Florida and Tennessee, all victorious in their latest tests and all with spotless slates, hold their edge on Southern Conference rivals but Tennessee alone of the three to play this week, must beat Kentucky to stay in the running.

From the spectacular viewpoint next Saturday's program will be featured, on opposite sides of the continent by the California-Stanford game at Berkeley, before 90,000 or more, and the Yale-Harvard contest at New Haven, where these ancient eastern rivals will meet before upwards of 75,000 spectators, without much but their old traditions involved.

Nebraska's invasion of West Point and the renewal of the Navy-Princeton rivalry add lustre to the eastern list while the traditional theme will be uppermost in such contests as Missouri-Kansas, Indiana-Purdue, Ohio State-Illinois, and Iowa-Michigan.

IN LITTLE NINETEEN

Bradley Poly met its nemesis in Millikin University Saturday, receiving a 14-6 trouncing at the hands of the powerful big blue eleven, which now is perched at the top of the Little 19 percentage ladder.

The Peoria Indians share second place standing with Augustana, another formidable conference grid machine. It is the first time in three years that Peoria has not occupied the conference football throne.

Disputing possession of the slippery Little 19 grid crown was Eastern Illinois Teachers College, tied with Millikin. Charlie Lantz's shock troops emerged from the Carbondale teacher expedition with the long end of an 18-0 score. In an earlier game, the teachers tied Millikin 12-12. McKendree College Bear Cats, another claimant to the title, played a non-conference tilt in preparation for their clash with Bradley at Peoria, Nov. 24.

Western Teacher made a comeback against Illinois Normal University, defeating the red birds to attain a 500 percentage. It was the first time Hanson's maize and gold eleven has been represented in a game with its full strength since the Bradley tilt.

Illinois Wesleyan won its first game in six years from Illinois College, 14 to 0. North Central closed its season in a tie game with Carthage. Shurtleff College of Alton hung up a 58-0 victory, over Will Mayfield College. The contest was Captain "Red" Nicolet's final in collegiate sports. The last game of the season for Lake Forest was a non-conference affair against Northwestern college at Farrel Field. The Gold Coast Club broke even in its Little 19 debut. Mount Morris gained momentum in the home stretch, defeating Eureka 6-0. Wheaton also played its last game, battling to a scoreless tie against Northern Teachers of DeKalb.

Knox bowed to Coe College in a mid-west championship encounter, while Monmouth walloped Cornell 25-0. St. Viator, took a lacing from John Carroll College in another out of the state clash.

SOME FIGURES DO LIE
The late Urban Shocker became one of baseball's greatest pitchers by studying the box scores of games. He spent hours pouring over box scores and summary of every game and it was said that he knew more about the batters than any other pitcher in baseball.

No football coach or player can achieve the same results by studying the statistics of a football game because they simply don't count. The breaks are the things that count in a football game.

Lafayette, for instance, made a total of 45 first downs against the opposition's 14 in the Bucknell, West Virginia and W. & J. games but Lafayette lost the three games. Eighteen fumbles in the three games caused their defeats.

Harvard lost to Pennsylvania as a result of a fumble. Maryland beat Yale on a break that came on Hobbs' fumble and Georgetown beat New York University on a fumble.

The statistics of the Georgetown-N. Y. U. game show to what crazy extents the figures can move. N. Y. U. rushed the ball 187 yards

ABE MARTIN

I'd like t' be a Wash-in'ton political writer an' be able t' tell which way a state is goin' t' swing by lookin' out of a car window. I wonder what th' Lord does about th' cheerful giver who charges his donation t' overhead an' passes it along?

for 17 first downs; made 5 first downs and 116 yards on passes and tossed a Georgetown punter for a safety and two points.

Georgetown rushed the ball only 37 yards and didn't make a first down and made only 41 yards and two first downs on passes. But a Georgetown man picked up a fumble and ran 87 yards for a touchdown that won the game.

Minnesota lost to Iowa and Northwestern by failing to convert a point after touchdown that would have tied the score and Princeton and Ohio State failed to escape a tie because neither team converted the point.

ONLY ONE WAY TO LEARN

Reigh Count has the blood lines and the record of a good, game horse and he has a good game owner in John Hertz, the millionaire Chicago taxi man.

In Reigh Count the Chicago turfman has a thoroughbred who could be retired to the stud without any discredit to himself or his owner because in this day it is fashionable to get a reputation and then run into seclusion with it.

Instead of retiring Reigh Count, with plenty of fairly won glory, Hertz is sending the Kentucky Derby winner to England to race in the classic Ascot Gold Cup race next year. He is doing it against all advice because the disadvantages are known and it is not certain that Reigh Count is now a sound horse.

"He is either a horse just above the ordinary Kentucky Derby winner type or he is a really great horse and I am going to find out," Hertz said.

British turfmen will appreciate the sportsmanship. They haven't had a very high regard for American horses because American owners in the past would not submit their champions to the test which British breeders may be correct in claiming to be much more severe than any of the American races.

Minnesota Leads Big Ten Teams in Scoring

Chicago, Nov. 19—(AP)—Routing the Haskell Indians, 52 to 0, Saturday, Minnesota took the lead in the Big Ten football race for team scoring honors from Iowa and Wisconsin, bringing its season's total to 172 points.

Its quarterback, Freddy Hovde, scored one of the Gophers' eight touchdowns in the game and took un-

THE CALL OF THE OUTDOORS

HERE AND THERE

Farmers Adopt Pheasants
The pheasant, recently reared in such large numbers by state conservation departments in various parts of the country, has proved unpopular with the farmers. In Dakota these birds sometimes follow the corn planter, digging up the corn as fast as it is planted. They are such ravagers of crops that farmers have loudly protested. But the farmers of Washington and Oregon have seen the light. They have discovered that the pheasant is fine eating, and that by regularly killing the legal limit during the opening season, they can quite handily make up for the losses. The pheasants are easily domesticated, and the farmers have lured them into their barnyards!

Cool Weather Tent

In cool weather, an open tent is much preferable to a closed one. The shelter tent is best, for the fire may be built in front of it and the campers recline in comfort, whereas the closed tent admits none of the heat of the fire. The timber cruisers of northern Minnesota use a wedge tent

all the year around. In cool weather they simply turn the tent on its side, so that the ridge on the ground, and the bottom of the tent, which is open, faces the fire.

Spruce Roots

Not many modern campers have to know very much fine woodcraft, as the Indians did. Only under the most unusual circumstances must they know how to make fires without matches, fashion dishes out of birch bark. But there is one little wrinkle that comes in handy. Things are forever needing mending, and the greatest lack is for rope, twine, or something similar. Therefore it is well to keep in mind that the roots of the spruce tree make an excellent substitute. The spruce has long roots with very little taper. These can easily be salvaged from dead and fallen trees. The outer bark of the roots can be easily removed, and the inner root is glossy and smooth. For most purposes they can be used as they are, but if intricate binding or tying is necessary, they may be soaked in boiling water for a few moments, when they become as pliable as rope.

Negro Beats Willie Ritola in Long Run

New York, Nov. 19—(AP)—Willie Ritola's national senior A. A. U. cross country title has passed into the hands of Gus Moore, youthful Negro star of the Brooklyn Harriers.

Moore defeated a field of 59 runners, chiefly from the metropolitan district, in the annual six-mile grind at Van Courtland park yesterday.

Moore's time was 31 minutes, 20 1-5 seconds as compared to the record of 29:27 set in 1925 by Ritola who captured the championship in five of the past six years. Ritola did not defend the title this year.

New York Yankees Nobody's Doormat

New York, Nov. 19—(AP)—The conviction grows that the New York Yankees will be nobody's doormat in the National Hockey League this season.

Bill Dwyer's revamped sextet battled the world's champion New York Rangers to a one-all tie before a wildly excited crowd of 18,000 at Madison Square Garden last night. The ten minute overtime period failed to break the deadlock.

In the only other league game, the Detroit Cougars downed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3 to 1, while 8,000 looked on at the Cougar's rink.

Denver is Awarded 1929 A. A. U. Meeting

New York, Nov. 19—(AP)—The question whether an athlete can perform up to standard when transferred to an altitude of 5,280 feet above sea level came in for discussion by the A. A. U. track and field committee. It finally was answered in the affirmative, and Denver was named as the committee's choice for the 1929 championships, senior and junior, to be held about July 4.

The Denver University stadium, slated to be the scene of the games, has a capacity of 33,000 and when completed will seat 60,000, the emissaries from Colorado said.
